BENEFITS TO YOUR COMPANY

Enhanced Strategic Vision

Investing in the training and development of a GTM leader can lead to broader and more innovative strategic solutions. This encompasses an advanced understanding of market trends, customer behavior, and competitive dynamics, which can help the CMO lead the company to capitalize on new opportunities and carve out a market leadership position.

Improved ROI on Marketing Initiatives

With continuous learning, a CMO, CRO or GTM exec can adopt the latest marketing methodologies and technologies, leading to more efficient and effective marketing campaigns. This could mean better customer targeting, higher conversion rates, and ultimately, a stronger return on investment for all marketing activities.

Stronger Leadership and Team Performance

A well-developed CMO can inspire and lead the marketing team more effectively, fostering a culture of continuous improvement. This can enhance team morale, attract top talent, and improve overall department performance, which is critical for executing successful marketing strategies.

Future-Ready Skill Set

The marketing landscape is constantly evolving with new channels and technologies. Ongoing training ensures that the CMO's skills remain current and relevant, allowing the company to stay ahead of the curve when it comes to innovations such as digital marketing, data analytics, and customer experience management. Better Cross-

Functional Alignment Across the GTM

A CMO or CRO who is well-versed in various aspects of the business, including finance, operations, and sales, can collaborate more effectively with other departments. This can lead to more cohesive business strategies, aligning marketing efforts with the company's overall objectives, and driving holistic success.

Higher Probability of Unlocking Hidden Value:

A CMO or CRO who can work better cross-functionally and has better business acumen is more likely to deliver a successful transactional outcome and increase the value of the company.

Join us, and let's accelerate your journey to becoming a successful transformational leader in the ever-evolving realm of strategic marketing in a digital-first sales motion.

ADVANTAGES OF DEVELOPMENT HIGH POTENTIAL TALENT VERSUS HIRING FROM THE OUTSIDE

In the event the executive team is determining whether to bring in new talent or develop from within, below is cost/benefit analysis of internal development versus taking the time to hire a new CMO or CRO.

Cost of Development vs. Recruitment

- Internal Development: The costs include training programs, mentoring, and time spent on development. In this case, the cost of the program and 2-3 hours a week for 8 weeks.
- External Hiring: Costs involve recruitment fees, which can be substantial (~25% of first year compensation) for executives, plus, higher compensation demands. The average time to recruit and onboard a new CMO or modern GTM exec is typically six months.

Time to Productivity

- Internal Development: An internal executive is likely already familiar with company culture, processes, and staff, which can lead to a quicker transition into the new role.
- External Hiring: An external executive may take more time to reach full productivity as they learn about the new environment and establish relationships; typically three months.

Cultural Fit and Morale

- Internal Development: Promoting from within can boost morale, as it demonstrates a pathway for career progression. The individual is also more likely to embody the company culture.
- External Hiring: New perspectives and experiences can revitalize teams and bring in new expertise. However, it can also lead to cultural mismatches and potentially lower morale among internal candidates who were passed over.

Risk and Innovation

- Internal Development: An internal candidate may carry less risk of turnover but may also be more inclined to maintain the status quo rather than innovate.
- External Hiring: External hires might be more likely to bring fresh ideas and change, but they also carry a higher risk of early exit if they don't integrate well.

ADVANTAGES (CON'T)

Long-Term Value

- Internal Development: Long-term investment in employees can lead to loyalty and retention, with developed leaders deeply invested in the company's success.
- External Hiring: A new executive can make immediate strategic changes that could impact the company's trajectory and valuation, if they come with a well-know reputation.

Succession Planning

- Internal Development: It's a crucial part of succession planning, ensuring business continuity and reducing the risk associated with sudden departures.
- External Hiring: Hiring externally can fill gaps in succession planning, but it might also indicate a lack of effective planning and employee development.

ALTERNATIVE APPROACHES

- CMO Course: Universities such as Stanford offer a one-week course for $15,000. It won't cover the depth that this challenge can, and it's specific to the B2B technology and software industry. It's also a hybrid program mixing self-paced learning, weekly huddles, and 1:1 virtual coaching so it's less disruptive to the business.
- Executive Coaching: Coaches range in skill and have an hourly rate that can be as high as $700 per hour. They can offer great feedback on leadership, but it isn't geared towards modern marketing best practices with practical playbooks to apply.

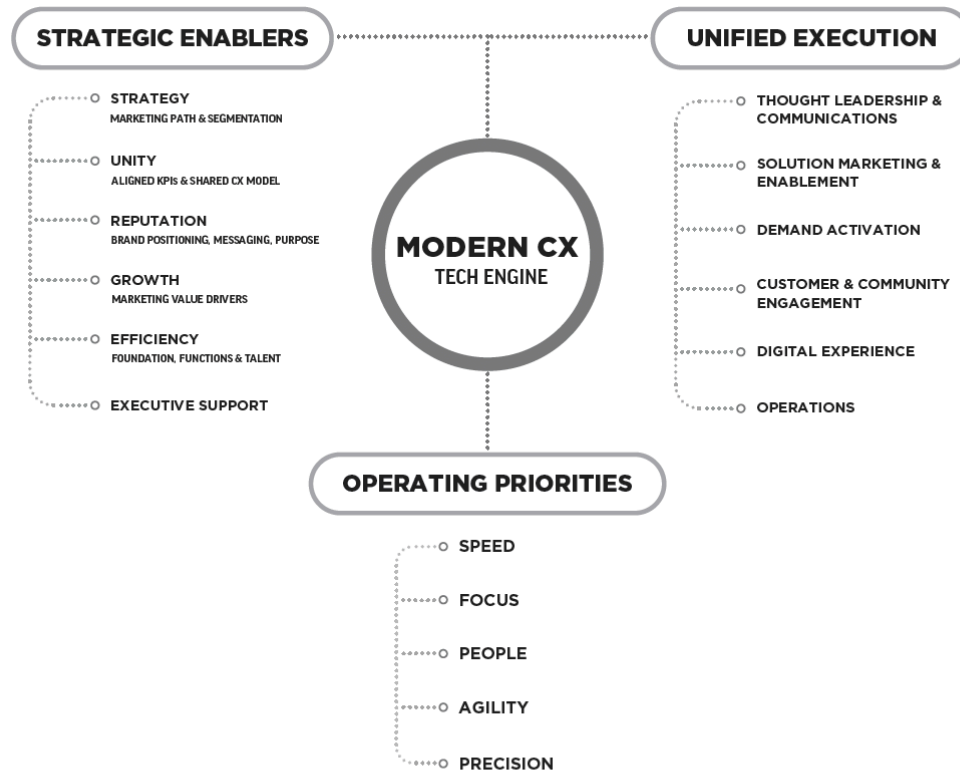

Hiring from outside can carry risks associated with cultural fit, employee morale, and time to impact in addition to it being more costly and take much longer to have a real impact on the business. Developing your marketing talent can be more cost effective, less disruptive, and can offer faster benefits. Of course the best choice depends on the specific circumstances and strategic needs of the organization, but talent development is a great no-risk, no-regret option.

GTM CHALLENGE

Based on the Best Selling Book

"Holly has written the definitive strategic marketing manifesto. She has shared the scar tissue you get only by living and breathing the ups and downs of building a business and has described those lessons in a straightforward, digestible, and fun read. As one who has reviewed thousands of business plans and hundreds of board plans, Holly nailed it. You must keep your eye on the horizon lest you go off course, but you better pay maniacal attention to the details that are driving to that horizon. Holly's sage advice acts as a rudder and should be absorbed by every B2B CEO trying to balance their ship."

Ted Schlein

Former Managing Partner, Kleiner Perkins; Founder Partner, Ballistic Ventures

"Rollo's advice is a lifeline for those preparing for a major transaction or going through a pivot. If you're ready to turbocharge your software business and find hidden value, Power of Surge is an indispensable guide."

David Lang

Partner, KKR

"Refreshing and powerful. Rollo's insights about how to use strategic marketing as a value driver are helpful and impactful. She not only diagnoses root causes hindering results but also offers actionable remedies that CEOs can put to work immediately. The framework she lays out in this book can help companies set themselves up for long-term success."

Betty Hung

Managing Director, Vista Equity Partners

"Holly Rollo's new book is a must-read for any investor or CEO in the B2B software space. Her decades of marketing leadership success at important companies has given her the ideal perspective for crafting a tight, actionable framework for creating competitive advantage. All of this is combined with a highly accessible narrative style. What is not to like?"
